In a town where the corrupt are protected, a bereaved mother seeks retribution for an arsonist's deadly crimes. Only Nameless can help ease the burden of her grief—and satisfy her rage—in part four of this thrilling series.

After a suspicious house fire, Regina Belmont lost her two children, was left disfigured, and was abandoned by her gutless husband. Brokenhearted and bullied into silence by corrupt officials, Regina's only recourse for truth and justice is Nameless. There's something about this case that's breaking Nameless's heart as well. But can he bear to remember why?

From #1 New York Times bestselling author Dean Koontz comes Red Rain, part of Nameless, a riveting collection of short stories about a vigilante nomad, stripped of his memories and commissioned to kill. Follow him in each story, which can be read or listened to in a single sitting.

Dante says

"No one gives a shit about your dead kids".

Peter says

This time Nameless has to help a disfigured woman, Regina Belmont. She and her children were at the wrong place at the wrong time. An arsonist took care of a building, her children died. Will the arsonist meet his fate by the hand of Nameless? Another compelling adventure with our nameless hero, but some repetitive elements disturbed the reading pleasure. We know he suffers from amnesia and that he's a clairvoyant, has visions and can be without mercy. Those references are used like text modules. Otherwise a very dark story with a great avenger. Liked it and can recommend this book too!

Char says

sigh

More of the same, but I've invested too much time now to not finish the series.
